Camana Bay, a sleepy resort town in Grand Cayman, boasts a 72' high tower with an expansive feature wall depicting the undersea life surrounding the island. The wall is comprised of over 5,000,000 hand-cut pieces of glass to form what is believed to be the largest hand-cut glass mosaic of its kind in the world. (see cover image) Vetrluxe also provided custom mosaics for two vaulted ceiling passageways. A sample of the ceiling being assembled is pictured at right.

Vetrluxe worked closely with the owner of an expansive luxury home in Boca Raton, providing design and installation services for over 5,340 sq ft of mosaics. A formal and elegant look was achieved with a series of hand-cut glass mosaics utilizing a wide array of earth toned tesserae tastefully spread out from the grand entrance of the entry foyer and delineating the path to the main house and the various fountains and pool.
